

Alexandra "Lexi" Varga

April 16, 1959 - April 15, 2016

Alexandra "Lexi" Terezia Varga, born April 16, 1959, passed away April 15, 2016 at her home in Catskill, New York, one day before her 57th birthday. Alex was an amazing woman with many talents. Her love of art expressed itself in textile designs and beaded earrings of the most intricate patterns and detail.

In her young adult years, she graduated high school as valedictorian, attended New York University and embraced the New York City lifestyle of the Eighties. She immersed herself into the music scene and befriended many musicians and dancers. Alex always had a fascination and interest in the Egyptian civilization and researched it extensively with the help of the world renown Egyptologist, Dr. Bob Brier. Many of her earring designs were based on Egyptian patterns and textiles, using an ancient weaving technique. In her later years she returned home to a quiet life in Catskill and enjoyed gardening, watching TV and taking care of the family home and pets.

Alex is survived by her mother, Katalin Varga, her brother, Paul Varga and sister-in-law, Patricia Varga (nee Schofield), her two sisters, Gabriella and Emese Varga, and two aunts Theresia Hoermann and Diane Varga.

“ I remember Lexi as a little kid when my greataunt, Jane Applebaum and my grandmother, her sister Erma Sherman, were both working at The Bottle Shop during the renovation of the old store back in the mid 1970s. Her humor and style made quite an impression on me as an eight or nine year old. I am truly sorry to read of her passing. She'll definitely be watching over all of you as an angel with her eternally beautiful spirit.
