“ Hard to believe It's already been a year. Im so glad I at least have a phone full of memories to look back on, and I often look at them. I'll always miss my best friend. The most loving, and supportive person I've ever met. I will always be grateful that our paths crossed in this life. Love and miss you Mom! Rest easy, and In Heavenly Peace. I will always love you. Love, Sue

“ My Brother Mickey said it all about how close we all were at Grandmas house Alice was 2 years older then me, but every Friday after school I would make my way to my aunt Lizzy house and really each weekend it was clock work, we for the next 2 days and nights played Monopoly all day and night, woke up on the floor and started the next game or finish the last one. just one happy young girl as i always can remember. I hope one day to play that game again with my loving cousin Alice. rest in peace very sweet Lady with fond loving memories.

“ We spent many summer days at Grandma Michelina's house on Butler Street in Brooklyn when we were kids. Laughing, playing in the street, making Grandmas cat Diogenes crazy. That poor cat, what we used to do to it. What a great time to grow up and the memories are many and so so wonderful. Our mothers were the closest of sisters and because of that we spent a lot of time and especially holidays together. One that stands out is that every year Grandpa used to make 2 huge barrels of wine. He had this ancient wine press embedded in concrete in the back yard. When the crates full of grapes would arrive there would be a big family gathering. The adults would break the cases and dump the grapes into the huge basin above the press. Then they would make us take our shoes and socks off and lift us kids up into the basin and we would...yes...stomp the grapes! Laughing and giggling, swishing and swaying me and Alice and Mickey and Lou and Anna stomped around in the 2 foot pile of grapes until they were all crushed into the press. The first step in the wine making process. We had grape stains on our feet and legs for days. Miss my cousin. Miss those times. RIP cuz!
