“ Hey bub I had no idea. God rest your soul old friend.
If you're in the presence of Jesus Christ, you know the truth.
I believe in forgiveness and I completely forgive any false accusations against me.
If I'm a liar, may my soul burn in eternity.
I did you no wrong Brian.
Enough about that nonsense though, I respected you.
I called you friend.
I believed you where an excellent example of a dedicated father,
husband and friend.
I listened when you spoke.
You taught me how to navigate a guitar, even though I thought the music you listened to was not my type of music...lol
You know the truth now bub...
God rest your soul in His presence.

“ Dear Dad, I'm sorry that you had to go so early, I'm still in denial, but I know the truth is that God took you because he had to. I know that you are in a better and place and no longer suffering, which I can't say makes it easier, but I have some relief. I just want to say that I am so thankful for all of the wonderful memories we had together not just as father and son, but as friends. We had our special bonds, you taught me how to play 3 instruments, some vocals, recording, song writing, fitness, and we went to a lot of open mic and gigs together. You were a protector, provider and a body guard. I always felt safe every where we went together just because you were with us. This news is sad and so hard, but I know that your life lived was an inspiration and made a good impact on mine. You always made me feel positive when you told me you were proud of me for every good thing I did. Some fathers aren't always there for their families, but you were there for everything. I know we had our arguments and tough times, but we always apologized and never held grudges. I hope to be the good father you were someday. I know that you are in heaven and I am so thankful that God has helped us through all of this. I haven't met anyone who was as strong as you physically and emotionally even in that condition. I believe that everything that you deposited into me will help me impact others in the future. I miss all of your funny stories and how creative you were. Thanks for all the laughs and original quick witted personality, that has all inspired me. God bless you forever and rest in peace. Love you so much and will always remember you.

“ Brother, friend, buddy. I am sad that you are gone and we wont be able to share those laughs together. When I first moved up to cairo I didnt know anyone. I met you after a few months of living there and you allowed me to feel apart of something. Not only did you make me feel welcomed you let me feel like apart of your family. We had our fights we had our differences but we both knew we would always be there for one another. My greatest moments was when you asked me to come fix the computer. How you and lisa would fight for my attention. You always blamed the kids for breaking the pc. But i really believe you just did it to get me there. Thank you brian for allowing me to be apart of your family. It meant the world to me. I am so sorry i wasnt there with you and your family. I am going to miss the hell out of you. “ Brian, my love, there are not enough words to express my feelings, the memories, the shared gifts of our children being born. I'm speechless and have a million things to say at the same time, which gives me writer's block. All I know is you are interwoven into every facet of my life. There is a huge hole in my soul that only you can fill. My heartache is incessant. I long to touch your hand, hear your voice, hug you and smell you, your essence. When I touch your clothes and things I can feel your essence. Part of me dies with you. None of us can accept this. You were brave, strong, funny, smart, intuitive, alert, keen and had a powerful personality. You were the center of my world, constant as the northern star, shining ever constant in my life. From kids to grandparents our love was pure. Yes we had our rocky roads, I look at it like a rollercoaster ride. Baby I took my vows seriously, Rich or poor, better or worse, sickness and in health. You feel like you let us down because you got sick. But through that sickness we were able to realize even more how brave and strong you were. The way you fought that battle with a ferocious disease. The way you found ways to still be a dependable dad, husband and paw paw and not let anything hold you back amazed me. I told you that you amazed me and you didn't seem to believe it. Your gifts of music, writing stories, painting, and so much more ar

.....Are carrying on in your children, we have 4 strong gentlemen and 2 classy young ladies. We were and are the musketeers, all for one and one for all. I never wanted to say goodbye, so I'm saying see you later. Thank you for all of the beautiful letters, gestures, handpicked flowers, tender moments, gifts, your time and on and on. You were always a "man". I thank God for your handsome face and everything else I loved about you. You had a big generous, kind heart and it finally had enough. I'm sorry for any pain you've suffered in your life. I so wish I could fix things where the end could have been different. I have to face that tough realization that you had an aggressive deadly disease and there was no simple cure. I LOVE YOU now and forever.

“ Beanie,

This is not suppose to be- this soon, this young!!

My grief and sorrow is so painful, but nothing compared to what you had to endure. I've read your messages over and over- written from the depths of your soul, made me feel every word, the love, the hurt and regrets-It feels surreal, but maybe it's because you are, and always will be with me. All the songs that you sang, but changed the lyrics to- I have always sung them exactly like that with you in mind. Every Beatle song I've ever listened to, was always you. All the crazy torture- you climbing on the roof of the house with your pellet gun and shooting me while I was taking a suntan- Watching you stick your fist in a red ant pile because you were dared. You jumping out the pool naked because you got mad from being "pantsed". Your temper was always so close to the surface, but it was because your heart was too. Look out if it was hurt... but I understood it.

The hours and hours of hanging on the phone, reliving our past that only the two of us could understand. I'm sure it drove everyone else nuts, but it was our "therapy". My nickname given to me by you- anytime anyone asked- "my brother Brian named me that". I write this with tears streaming-

You LOVED!!! and you let it be known

The love that you bestowed on your children will be your LEGACY- You will be carried on in more ways than one!

I love you my Beanie- your KeeKee

“ Dad,

You patted me to sleep when I was a little boy and sang John Lennon's "Beautiful Boy," to me. You played guitar and encouraged me to sing along my entire life starting at 4 years old. You saved my life twice when I was drowning. You taught me how to swim(good thing) You taught me how to ride a bike. You taught me how to cut my steak. Even though you weren't a basketball player, you gave me better coaching tips than any coach I ever had. I have "good hands" in sports because you threw the football to me so many Saturdays and Sundays. You taught me how to fight. You taught how to work hard and fast and be on time. You taught me how to drive. You taught me how to work out. You gave me better advice than any pastor or professor. After I moved out and I would visit, you always gave me something. If you only bought one new article of clothing that year, you would give it to me when you saw me. You always had my back. You gave me rides to and from airports and bus stations anytime day or night. You were a great father and an even better "Paw Paw" to Julian. Thank you for painting with him. I think he's going to be an artist and musician like you. You taught me so much more but most importantly you taught me by example to stop and help the elderly, to help people with special needs, to look out for children. To put others before before myself. THANK YOU. You always stood up for the "underdog." There's heroes and then there's the people that even save the heroes. Like when you saved the female state trooper who's body was pinned between two cars. You always were my hero and still are. You are the bravest, craziest, most generous, most learned, most sentimental yet most toughest man I ever knew.

Please enjoy your new "room" in heaven. We will be okay. I know you are still with me in the Spirit, as long as I do what is right. I love you my Dad, my friend. I look forward to hugging you and shaking your hand. "In the meantime" I will make you proud.

Love, your oldest son, your "Beautiful boy" who proudly carries your name...

“ I love Brian Langsford
As so many, many, many others do!
I met Brian in late 1969!
Right at 50 years ago! We butted heads just a cpl of times, in all those years! And we together busted the heads of to many mean bullies to count. And our bond, mutual respect 🤝 and love always grew stronger. I know my brother Brian is in Paradise with Jesus, but I'm going to still miss my beautiful Souled Elephantine Hearted Brother.
Brian was truly fearless coming up, and he always was so smart, smarter then me that's for sure! So very talented and just overall truly 😎 cool! My Brother Brian ❤️❤️❤️❤️🙏🙏🙏🇺🇸🇺🇸✝️
To all of Brian's beautiful children, family, friends and of course his magnificent colossal hearted amazing bride Lisa, I love you all so much. My heart is with all of you. My prayers and love will go on eternal!
So much love .. Pure Love ❤️
