“ Liz was my stepmother and a light in my life. She was a kind, caring, and supportive woman, not only to her family, but to most everyone she met. Even if months or years passed before I visited her and my father, she would greet me with her welcoming smile, bright eyes, a kind word, and a laugh. Most of the times I called to catch up with my father, her and I would talk the entire time. She was truly interested in the learning about the highs and lows in my life.

She was a good listener and offered compassionate advice, especially regarding my marriage.

I cherish my time with her and the positive influence she had on my life. In this fallen world, Betty was a bright light.
