“ I just want to send my prayers out to Eric and his family. Its been a tough year but the one thing I have realized since is the amount of people he has touched. I hope his children and family know how much he spoke with love about them. I have grieved with many of his friends, and although i knew him later in life, I am still amazed at how many friends he made and lives he touched. He was definitely a special individual and i truly miss him everyday. He would hate to think of everyone close to him grieving, so instead i say we think of how he made us laugh and smile. I know my life and many others have changed forever but he knows the amount of love that will always be there for him. Although it hurts so badly and that he will never be forgotten, we must think of him with a smile even with a tear in our eyes to honor him for who he was. I love you Eric and miss you everyday and i will try my best to live through you as a better man as you would want.

“ Beef, you've always been a brother to me. We saw each other everyday over the last few years and I can't believe how much I miss the times together and when I get home from work and your not there at my house waiting for me. You've always done projects for me without asking for reciprocation and we were always there for each other talking about everything that's real in our lives. You were the best friend I ever had and I miss you every day. I got you and you got me in our own way. I miss your handsome, crazy, fun, real, smart, unique self. U were my brother and will always be. So much love to Mags, Ra, Gordon, the boys, and all of his family and friends that were blessed enough to know him for who he was. He truly made everyone a happier person when he was in their presence. I love you brother, I'll miss you forever and I'll see you again. Nothing will be the same for me but I will always cherish what we had. Your problems we talked about are over now, it's your turn to finally enjoy the next journey that you always wanted to go on. You were always a free spirit unlike anyone I ever met. I love you forever my brother. Thank you for being you and being a part of my life. I will always hold your friendship close to me. I love you beef daddy and I will count the minutes until I see you again.

“ I remember Thumper, the awful rabbit, who tore up the bathroom on 2nd Street. Locking him out of his house on Union Street and his arm went through the glass in the door. Playing a game with darts, I stuck one in the back of his leg. I remember him being named "Beefy McCheeseburger", hence Beef for short. I remember him pitching for the Yankees in Athens Little League, throwing over the press box, then leaving the mound squeezing through the fence and dugout to get on his bike to go home. And countless more stories...
