“ Mom was always getting things ready for Dad here on earth.... I guess she had everything ready for him on the other side as well. A true story of broken heart syndrome. Still in such a fog. Eric and I are especially grateful for the love and support of everyone who showed up for us today. You all shared in the testimony of true love and broken heart syndrome, right alongside the two of us. We are so grateful.

OMG! I'm so very saddened by this horrible news. John and Linda's relationship was proof that true love does exist. They are together again, continuing to love and care for each other for an eternity. I'm so very sorry for your loss, and ours. They both touched many lives in so many meaningful ways, that they will be remembered forever. My 60-year friendship with thm is never to be forgotten. My heart weeps for our loss. Stay strong and know you have the love and support from all of us who loved the "perfect couple". Please don't hesitate to call upon us.
