“ Dear Kris,

I needed some time for this wrenching sadness to pass before I could share. I know you know what I am feeling right now which makes it so hard for me to accept and understand.

I was merely 9 years old when my beautiful sister Judy brought you into this world. You were full of spunk and determination and we could easily see that you were going to be a tough one. At times, you were a pain, especially to your siblings, Terrylynn, Robbie and Joey put up with your teasing, your persistent presence lol, but they loved having you as their little brother. You grew quickly and strong and before you could fully walk, you would put the fear in us as you continually attempted to climb the stairs. Yes, you were a terror but you were so confident, a bit annoying at times but full of love, life, energy, laughter, and determination.

As time passed, we could see you were becoming a man of distinction, someone others would yearn to know. You hand-picked the best of friends and rarely made those tempting adolescent poor choices. You had the ability to do anything you put your mind to, and you did just that.

From the early years of bike riding, hiking, camping, and cave spelunking to the war-torn battlefields of Desert Storm, you showed teamwork, leadership and ingenuity and you always persevered. We will never forget that portable shower you designed for your brothers-in-arms. After the Gulf War, you continued to show us your resilience, your selflessness, and your warmth. This surely became apparent as you committed your life to become a nurse. You answered your calling to use your life experience to help those in need and those who were suffering from nearly endless pain. You did this not ever knowing that you would one day be faced with similar struggles as your patience once did. Although you have left us much too early, you did accomplish much more than most and I will eternally miss you.

I will miss our long-winded talks about life, history, politics, science, and technology

*I will miss your late-night voice-generated text messages when you were excited to just share something
I will miss being someone to lean on when you just needed to talk
I will miss the "me" I was in your life
But most importantly, I will miss you.*

*Yesterday is filled with memories of knowing you Today is not the last day I will mourn
Tomorrow will never come where I won't remember you Forever is just the beginning of how long ~ Pisarri*

*An excerpt from a song written about you from your uncle Pete 40 pounds of dynamite
A devil in disguise
A bit mischievous
But an angel otherwise
For now, I will just patiently wait to see you again and maybe someday, I will learn how Pete knew so early in your life the impact this song's lyrics would have on us.*

Love your uncle Mark

“ What can I say, I am heartbroken. Kris and I were buddies since we were little kids, we grew up together, we shared so much. Kris was more like a brother to me than a nephew, we did so many things together. I will miss our long talks on the phone and I will just miss Kris so very much. I wish I had known how to help him more. Terrylynn, Robbie and Joey, I am very sorry for you too. I will love and miss you forever Kris XOXO Dion

I have not seen Kris in 19 years but in 2017 he contacted me out of the blue and we would sometimes talk over messenger after that. He told me that he was completely disabled for many years and that he was in a lot of pain. It's all very sad. I remember him being so strong and tough.

“ I am very sad for our loss, I just keep envisioning what a cute little guy Kristin was, with that beautiful blonde hair, that smile, his long eye lashes and gleaming teeth. I would be remiss if not to mention how smart and talented he was, he could do just about anything I think. A technical and mechanical genius, he always blew my mind with what he could accomplish. Memories of childhood and young adulthood flood my thoughts and I laugh and I cry. Let us not forget the flag costume Judy made for him to march in the Cairo parade (I think he was only 3 years old - cutest thing ever). The O'Connor and Pizarri clan could not wait for this little baby Kristin to be born, him and the other brat Dion, we just adored them. I recall too the mighty spelunkers - what a site; Kris, Dion, John, DJ and others would brave those caves and have a blast. As he got older Kristin became more of a serious type and went off to war. We were so proud of Kristin when he left to serve his country and he was too, a fine and brave young man. Sadly, it took a toll on him, as it does many, many others. If we do nothing at all, let us reach out to a wounded warrior, salute him, offer friendship or help of any sort! They deserve our honor!

My heart aches for Kristin's sorrows and for the sorrows of Terrylynn, Robbie, Joe and the rest of our family. Love to you all.....xoxo

I will carry a special place in my heart for Kristin.

Lovingly, Aunt Pam
